Fifth Week of Lent

Dear Friend,

A way of dealing with time

A story goes: A white American felt, when exploring the country, that his expedition was not making headway fast enough. To get earlier to his destination he paid the men who carried his things an additional amount of money urging them to walk faster. For several days they walked with greater speed.

Then one evening they all sat on the ground, put down their loads and refused to move on. No matter how much money he offered them the men would not budge. When the explorer finally inquired after the reason of this behavior, they answered:

“We have been walking so fast that we don’t know anymore what we are doing. Therefore we will wait until our souls catch up with us.”

Tip for this week:

Every evening I will look conscientiously at what I should be doing for my soul now.

With prayers of blessing for you on your way through the fifth week of Lent,

Srs. Agathe and Veronica Marie, SSpS
